New York.—The crew of four men and five passengers, missing from the two-masted British schooner Mary Beatrice, which was found drifting off Sandy Hook Wednesday night, were killed in a battle of pistols and axes, according to stories told by the survivors to immigration officials when the craft was brought into quarantine Thursday.

Three of the Chinese survivors had wounded were taken to the hospital at Ellis Island. An arm of one man was almost severed. The remainder were detained pending investigation by the authorities.

When the Mary Beatrice was boarded Wednesday night by officials, one of the orientals, making signs, indicated that his comrades and the remainder of the crew who were missing had been resting in the deep but did not explain in what manner they had died.

Abandoned by Skipper

Shrugging his shoulders, he pointed over the side. The owner of the vessel, with whom the Chinese had bargained in Ixavana to land them clandestinely on American soil, said he had abandoned the sailors while on their food steamer low eight days ago. Each of the Chinese was understood to have paid the owner $500 to be landed here.

The story told Thursday in Chinese to an interpreter was of a pitched battle with axes, pistols, marin pikes and iron rods. It was caused by the fact that the failure of skipper to carry out his part of the bargain with the orientals.

Deck Covered With Blood

Up and down the deck of the schooner the fight was waged until the white paint was covered with blood and four British sailors and five Chinese lay hacked to death. Survivors heaved the dead over the side.

The remaining 15 Chinese, though ignorant of the sea and ways of ships, were favored by fair weather. The craft drifted aimlessly. Its ladders were emptied. A distress signal was hoisted to the masthead and it was thus she was sighted by Pilot Hall of Sandy Hook, Wednesday afternoon.

Chinese Blame Crew
They were all aware of the vessel had abandoned her for that the fight occurred. Some of the Chinese declared the trouble was started by members of the crew, who tried to extort more money from them in order to carry out the skipper's promise to land them.

Olive Oil Shampoo Gives Soft Lustre To Dull, Dry Hair

To be beautiful, your hair must have lustre. Dull, dry hair simply detracts from the most charming face. Now specialists on hair beauty tell you to use a gentle shampoo of olive oil to have hair that is soft and glossy. They say that you must never wash your hair without olive oil. Do this and see new beauty come to dry, brittle hair. Get a bottle of PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO at any department or drug store. The most delightful of olive oil shampoos. Cleanses gently, and leaves the hair lovely, gleaming, soft and pliant as a baby's.

CHEMISTRY TO AID CROP CULTIVATION

Janesville—Chemistry shortly will take on new importance in the solution of the world's food problem arising from rapid increases in population.

Dr. Robert A. Gordon, chief of the division of biochemistry of the University of Minnesota, told a group of chemists meeting here in a symposium on colloid chemistry.

Colloid chemistry, the professor said, has been found to have almost endless application in relation to agriculture. Through this practical application the scientist said he believes great regions hitherto uncultivated may be brought under the plow.

Another piece of service will be rendered to 75 less fortunate mothers and babies of Janesville during the next few weeks, when this number will be given a week's outing at the army camp near East Troy, the expense of which will be met by the Lake Division headquarters.

The city nursery committee of the City Federation also reports that new sereas and other articles of equipment are badly needed at the day nursery, and that the sum of $100 should be raised immediately in order to pay pressing bills and insure the operation of the nursery for the next four months. The Grotto will contribute contributions for this purpose.

Large Audience Attends Opening Concert by Band

Favorable weather added to the enjoyment of the first band concert of the season Wednesday night in the court house park, and a large crowd attended. The band was erected in front of the court house, on recently enlarged driveway, which enabled many to drive up, park and enjoy the music while sitting in their cars. The location is a natural amphitheater, with sloping hills on three sides, and these Wednesday night were covered with people.

Playing showed that the band has practiced a great deal during the winter, and the many new pieces were enjoyable. The program was well-arranged, with overture following march, waltz following overture, and special selections played here and there. The heavier overtures were especially well played "Ghosts of Gold," "Hymnland," "The Spots," and "The Golden Dragon"—while the snappy marches and popular pieces found more favor with the listeners. Director Burr Tolles predicted great popularity for band concerts during the remainder of the summer.

All concerts this year will be given in the park, the plan of having them in different school grounds and parks having been found less popular.

Milwaukee Elks' INVESTIGATION OF MORAN AFFAIR IS VOTED DOWN, 18-12

Senator Garey challenged the movers of the resolution to show that they had offered any price to the government to make any changes to him. He said there had been no malfeasance on the part of state officers. He urged a grand jury investigation as the proper means of attacking the problem.

Matter of Decency

Senator Severson, when asked to explain his resolution, declared "in view of the fact that we have had set on the floor of the Senate that there has been malfeasance on the part of state officers. He urged a grand jury investigation as the proper means of attacking the problem."

Department Heads Jailed

The senator said that men in charge of departments have been in trouble with officials and taken to the county jail, and asked if that would not appear to give grounds for an investigation.

Senator Henry Roethke opposed the resolution on the ground that it did not afford a proper subject for legislative inquiry and would tend to lengthen the session. He said questions of policy were involved that should not be taken up by the senate.

Senator Moran, involved in the investigation, said that he did not wish to make a statement on the floor. He said if the resolution were adopted he would explain his action and if it was voted down, where an investigation would lead, it would not be necessary for him to explain the resolution.

"I don't see how any senator who stands for common decency and good government can vote against this measure," Senator Severson said. "It seems to me that the officers involved in this case are as bad as in the case of Lorimer and Nowberry that there was no basis for charges and that there should be a grand jury investigation."

In no other nation in the world do the courts yield such vast and far-reaching power as in the United States. All that is necessary is that the courts as a whole should exercise this power with the far-sighted wisdom already shown by those judges who scan the future while they act in the present. Let them exercise this great power not only honestly and bravely, but with wise insight into the needs and fixed purposes of the people, so that they may do justice and work equity, so that they may protect all persons in their rights and yet break down the barriers of privilege which is the foe of right.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The Grand Army Coming to Janesville.

That was welcome dispatch printed in the Gazette Wednesday night announcing that the Grand Army of the Republic of the state of Wisconsin would hold its next encampment in Janesville. The coming of the convention of from 1,500 to 2,000 members and visitors of the different organizations associated with the G. A. R. is due to the earnest work of State Commander J. F.
Carle of this city and others who have given him splendid support.

Oshkosh has just set a rapid pace for an encampment with the wealth of its decorations and the hospitality of its citizens in every walk of life. Janesville must make the encampment here a red letter event in the life of the state. G. A.
R. Milwaukee is to entertain the National Encampment in September and we can see many things to be done at that great gathering of the men who fought to preserve the union, which later will aid us. The fact that the youngest man at the 1823 state encampment who served in the Civil War was 73, again calls attention to the rapidly declining ranks of those men.

Janesville and Rock county were among the leaders in the state during the Civil War in sending sons to battle for righteousness, the integrity of the flag and against slavery. We of the younger generation owe this final tribute, we may be able to pay in this opportunity offered now, to the G. A. R. and the associated organizations in 1824 and to the fullest measure of gratitude. We will do it.

A Madison paper says of the progressive factions that a "spirit of give and take should prevail. "It does, yea, it doth prevail—give in the solar plexus and take on the point of the chin."

Riverside Park Needs You.

Riverside park is a bit of out doors which every resident of the city of Janesville should know. True, it needs clearing up in many ways but we do not seem to be inclined in that direction, but there are a lot of little attentions that would make the park more attractive for visitors this year. It may be that it takes time to get the habit of going out to any park, and taking advantage of it. The city itself can spend a few dollars there to good purpose such as instance as opening a road from the extension of Washington avenue to the park itself on the city property and giving a shorter cut into the groves of trees in that part nearest the main highway.

How many people in Janesville big and little have gone over the 133 acres of park in its entirety? How many know of the deep shade of its glens and the fine views from its higher points?
What nobler landscape can there be than the views along the river, a changing panorama and a new and more beautiful view as each point of vantage is reached. Here and there trees are dying. It has taken years to grow these trees; it will be a generation more before the dead ones can be replaced. They need examination to see if the gypsy moth is at work. They need trimming and care. It is a waste of the public money not to have them cared for and the dead trees cut out now. A few axes and a bush scythe properly handled will work wonders in the park.
The buildings on the grounds were erected at a cost of nearly half the sum paid by the city for the whole park acreage. They are uncared for and birds have been having a luxurious home with plenty of room. Riverside park is susceptible of great beautification and with a few roads and drives will eventually be an asset of which all citizens will be proud.

Because It Has an Army.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat of Montana, has been to Moscow. He is not the able statesman who landed in Europe on the 25th of May and on the 20th gave it as his opinion that after careful investigation we should recognize Russia and the soviet government. But nevertheless, Mr. Wheeler wants the government recognized and for strange reasons which write him down as an inconsistent and peculiar person mentally. "The reason the soviet government is going to last" (and Mr. Wheeler says the reason why it should be recognized is because it will last) is "There is an army of 500,000 men, finely equipped and well-drilled."

In the United States Mr. Wheeler is opposed to any sort of an army except a more skeleton and as to a navy scarcely any at all will suit him. But in order to sustain and keep the soviet alive in

Fareless Street Cars Proposed

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Free rides on street cars! No fumbling for tickets or metal tokens; no conductor watching to see that the company doesn't get cheated; no spotters watching the conductor!
This isn't a picture of Arcadia. It isn't a social-ist's dream. It is put forth as an interesting possibility by an engineer and traffic expert of this city, Captain R. C. Klotz.

"First of all," the traffic expert explained cautiously, "I would like to say that I am by no means in favor of municipal or government ownership of city transportation systems as against their operation by private interests under proper regulation."

Having thus established himself as a practical-minded conservative, the captain went ahead with more abandon to explain his idea.

He believes that as long as municipal ownership is being established in some places, it might be well to give some consideration to possible changes in the scheme under which the service is to be furnished. Elevator service is furnished without paying a fare for the privilege. Why should we not be able to travel horizontally by a similar arrangement?

The two situations are similar, but they have been met from the first in different ways.

As our cities spread to such proportions that horses and carriages were inadequate, and walking was too slow and tiresome, a system of mass transportation had to be devised. Accordingly, franchises were granted to individuals under which they were permitted to construct and operate railways in the public streets. To make the proposition pay, they were permitted to collect from the public reasonable tolls for the use of the car service.

The plan worked. It was profitable, and there was no difficulty in obtaining capital necessary for proper expansion and development of enough lines to serve a given territory. So the privately operated street car system, as we know it, became established.

It was different with vertical transportation.
Our office buildings, and later our hotels, were forced by gradually increasing property values to extend upward beyond the levels to which human beings were willing to climb. These interests, too, were confronted with the necessity of furnishing transportation facilities.

Whether any attempts were ever made to have this kind of transportation furnished by interests other than those which were backing the buildings, or whether tolls were ever collected from elevator passengers would be hard to determine, Captain Klotz says. The important fact is the practice of furnishing such transportation without direct charge, and absorbing the cost in the rental charges.

Elevator service is, of course, no more free transportation than the street car service. The office building tenants pay it for it in the rent bill and their customers and clients pay, their share still more indirectly in purchases and fees. If street cars were run without fare collection, the payment would be made in taxes, and the taxpayer would pay directly while the non-taxpayer would pay his share indirectly, as he so often does.

There are a number of advantages claimed for the no fare system. For one thing, the street cars would be more at the service of the people.
Then, again, the free use of cars would probably result in less congestion of the central business and residential districts. Oily sections might be expected to become more desirable property, and the city would make progress in development.

Not only would traveling properly near the street car lines be more desirable, but extensions of the established lines could be more easily obtained. With the usual systems of operating cars, extensions of lines are made only when there is prospect of early and adequate returns. The result is that congestion of population continues.
Areas which can and should take care of the natural increase in population remain undeveloped until the crowding in other districts has forced enough people into them to render transportation service remunerative.

It is pointed out that, with free, tax-paid transportation, the costs of constructing new lines into undeveloped territory would be justified. A new car line would stimulate improvements in an un-crowded quarter and the city would recover on its investment through the increase in taxes.

A third advantage deals with the cost of operating the cars. Fare collecting has been estimated as about one-sixth of the operating cost. This includes pay of the conductor, the company's inspectors, tokens, bookkeeping, and fare boxes and mechanical recording devices on the cars.

One other point in favor of the no-fare idea is cited. Two methods of financing municipal ownership have been tried. One plan is to keep the fare at a popular rate and to pay any deficit from public funds. The other is to operate the service from a cost basis, and to change the rate of fare from time to time to correspond with variations in the operating cost. So far as the public is concerned, conditions in the latter case do not greatly vary from conditions under private ownership properly conducted.

"In either case," says the captain, "the manner and cost of operation are dragged into the political arena and are very likely to be used as a basis for inculcation of the party which happens to be in power, particularly if the income from operations is large and the control of the property provides good plum picking for those having the upper hand."

The political attraction of the no-fare system would be no greater than that of the ones so far tried out and alterations as to whether or not the power in power was running the lines at a loss would be done away with, as they would be run at a 'loss' all the time."

The chief objection to the system described would naturally come from persons who do not use the street cars. To answer this, the captain returned to his parallel of the elevator.

"Such persons," he explained, "would have as much ground for their objections as would the occupant of the lower floor of a tall building. The individual who does not ride on the cars would benefit indirectly, and perhaps more than users of the service, through the freer and better development of the community which would follow the establishment of such a system."

In four different articles on Bulgaria, the former's name was spelled Stambulsky, Stamboulsky, Stambulskay and Stamboulskay. And all are wrong—his name is mud.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

BOYHOOD.
Perhaps 'twas just a fancy, or mayhap 'twas a dream. But as I traveled down the road I saw a silver stream. I heard its merry gurgle and I saw the red-wing birds. And I knew that birds were nesting in the clump of trees nearby. And then the strange thing happened, the thing I can't explain—

I was whistling through my fingers to my old playmates again.

The weight of age had left me. I was free from every care.

My little shirt was open, and my sun-burned legs were bare.

I had not yet got to sorrow and I had not bowed to fate.

I had not seen the solemn hearse come slowly to the gate.

My face was tanned and freckled, and my only grief was rain.

As I whistled through my fingers to my old playmates again.

They tell me I was dozing, but my eyes were open wide.

And all the boys I used to know were racing at my side.

For just one precious minute God above permitted me.

To live again, and see again, the boy I used to

Perhaps it was the silver stream which broke Time's heavy chain.

But I whistled through my fingers to my old playmates again.

Perhaps it was the red-wing as it flashed across the sky.

Perhaps it was the gurgle of the waters racing by.

Perhaps it was the fleecy clouds or something in the day.

But I was a boy again, although my hair was gray.

I lived one glorious moment, bare of foot I trudged the lane.

And whistled through my fingers to my old playmates again.

Who's Who Today

EDWARD PAGE GASTON.

His search for the remains of Pocouontas, Indian princess, has brought Edward Page Gaston, archeologist and journalist, into the limelight internationally. He has located the grave in which she is believed to have been buried and is now seeking her bones.

Gaston has been in England for years, lecturing on archeological subjects. He has been interested in such research work since he joined the Elementary expedition in 1888 to search the ruins in Arizona and New Mexico. Later he had among the Zuni Indians to obtain oil to the amount of milk sugar (lactose) is three or four times greater in cows' milk, but the usual dilution of the milk reduces the proportion of mineral matter, even if the mineral matter is excessive. If the mineral matter is excessive, it will be absorbed by the body, but if the mineral matter is not excessive, it will be excreted.

He combined his journalistic work with his other adventures. He founded the Pan-American news agency in Mexico City and also served as an attaché at the American legation there. He was a member of the expedition that climbed Popocatepetl volcano, 11,775 feet above sea level. For years while traveling extensively in Europe and America he contributed to magazines and for some time was European manager for Funk & Wagnalls company, publishers.

Early in the world war he was attached to the American embassy in Berlin. He visited nearly 70,000 prisoners of war held by the British and Germans and acted voluntarily for the British and German governments. He advised the American war department on welfare measures for American prisoners in Germany.

He was born in Henry, Ill., Nov. 19, 1878. He is a brother of Lucy Page Gaston, and a great advocate and his himself has been interested in the prohibition movement, having founded the International Prohibition confederation. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, London.

It is pointed out that, with free, tax-paid transportation, the costs of constructing new lines into undeveloped territory would be justified. A new car line would stimulate improvements in an un-
crowded quarter and the city would recover on
its investment through the increase in taxes.

Q. Who was the "blacksmith astronomer" C. F.

A. Lawrence J. Isch, who was born at Allentown, Pa., in 1819, and followed the blacksmith trade at Sheridan, Ill., most of his life, was willed all the charts, books and instruments of the astronomer Charles F. Engleman, upon the latter's death in 1869. Thereupon he took up Engleman's work of making astronomical calculations and became known as the "blacksmith astronomer."

Q. Who was the largest star in the sky?

A. Antares is the largest star of which we have reasonably accurate measurements. Its apparent brightness is about 400,000,000 times that of the sun, and 100,000,000 times as large as the sun, and 25,000,000,000,000 times as large as the earth. The distance of the sun from the earth is probably 350 light years, this being 20,000,000 times as great as

LATEST MARKET REPORTGRAIN*FINANCE

Cheese review. Chicago-Liverpool quotations showed an advance and with crop reports less favorable than the northwest, wheat averaged higher in prices here Thursday during the early dealings. Dry weather reports from the northwest were good, as a bushel of wheat was quoted at $1.11@ $1.11½; corn, 50¢@ 51¢; oats, 38¢@ 39¢; barley, 32¢@ 33¢; rye, 36¢@ 37¢. Corn and oats reflected wheat strength. After opening at 50¢ a bushel, corn closed at 51¢@ 51½¢; oats, 39¢@ 40¢. The corn market sagged somewhat and then scored a moderate general upturn.

Subsequently attempts at great sales failed and the upturns in quality market and the upturns in price were soon more than wiped out. Corn and oats reflected wheat strength. After opening at 50¢ a bushel, corn closed at 51¢@ 51½¢; oats, 39¢@ 40¢. The corn market sagged somewhat and then scored a moderate general upturn.

Stowness of cash demand, together with the weakness of wheat, had a depressing effect on the corn market in the final hour. Corn closed unsettled at a range, while oats closed unchanged at 40¢@ 41¢.

Cuts started unchanged to 14¢ higher, July 14¢, weakened a little and later showed gains, all around, with standing sales open on hogs, with provision market lacked support.

TENNIS—Walter Hagen, American holder of the British open golf title, emblematic of the championship of the world, is still picked to win again this year and retain his honors. The ricos of the 72-hole play for the laurels started Thursday morning.

Many golf critics are picking Mac-Donald Smith of California, to win the tournament.

The rest day before the "zero" hour when competition for the coveted title was welcomed by the few Americans remaining, Gene Sarazen, American, had a brave smile from despite his great disappointment at failing to make the one point necessary to squeeze through the qualifying round. It is said the rain bothered Gene.

Hagen presented a thrilling picture as he fought doggedly to qualify. Playing in the rain, in the drizzle, he had taken 41 on the outward trip, having to make 38 on the return. Al-though few gave him a chance, he found himself and accomplished the seemingly impossible.

The British have six men remain-ing for the final.

THERE ALL KICKIN' 'CEPT MAUD AND SHE ATE OATS 30 YEARS

GREEN BAY—The question of what is cruelty to animals was left unanswered by the population of Green Bay and Brown county by police officials and the owners of an old race horse.

Locked in barn at 403 Kellogg street Green Bay is a mare, Maud, at this time noted as a trotter on eastern tracks, who in the opinion of the neighbors, is the victim of cruelty, while according to her owners, Maud is their most cherished possession, treated as a member of the family, and nothing is too good for her.

Maud's story starts 30 years ago, after emerging from the colt stage she had given evidence of her high breeding, speedy legs and qualities of gameness, she was given an opportunity to perform on the track. This was at Albany, N. Y. There and on many other eastern tracks Maud was raced by her owner, Charles H. Hein, and in time the bay trotter became a popular star.

Many years later when Maud's days on the track were over Mr. Hein came to Green Bay. Maud continued to draw her daily ration of oats. She has earned them, he said, by her past performances.

According to neighbors, Maud has been locked in her stall for the past fifteen years, and is never permitted to graze on pasture grounds, though Hein claimed he had been told that "Maud was being punished for losing a race."

Mr. Hein told a newspaper man that, "next to my wife comes Maud." To this statement the neighbors retaliated with questions such as, "Why doesn't Mr. Hein ever let Maud out to pasture? If he thinks so much of her, why is she the last to get out for feed?" and "What is it that the barn is always tightly closed and locked?" Residents in the vicinity say that while Maud was out to pasture only last summer, she was "snatched back" into the barn the next day.

Police Chief Hawley, when asked about the case said, "We have a complaint every few months and after investigating it seems that she receives no rest or care."

Neighbors admit all this and in return say: "Very true, but Maud is nearing 30 and she never gets a breath of fresh air. She never gets a chance to pick at fresh grass. She doesn't know what turf feels like under her feet."

Officials of the humane society, police officials and the owner of Maud are going to leave this question to be answered by the public.

Public Links Golf Meet Boosts Municipal Courses

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

NEW YORK—In spite of the fact President Harding is a republican, he is a democrat at heart. He has just enthusiastically donated the "British Open Cup" for the municipal golf links title of the United States.

The cup, emblematic of team supremacy among public course players, will be contested this year between the University of Washington and the University of Wisconsin.

Athletic department announcement Thursday shows that Governor J. J. Blaine is to act as honorary referee, with W. J. Kohler, Sheboygan, president of the board of university regents, acting as referee. Officials of the athletic department are to be judges and timers.

To permit the eight courses nearest the winner to be eligible, the distance of each course will be reduced from three miles to two and one-half miles.

Both crews are working out daily on Lake Mendota and are reported in good condition for a feature event.

Soccer Players Now Conditioning

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

ALBANY—Frankie Andrews, at the Janesville Soccer club, has joined a private club and is not eligible to defend his title.

A large field is expected to play in this year's meet with the standard of play high. Milwaukee has entered four men from any city, may form a team. Competition will be 13 hours at stroke play, the low aggregate for the four teams to determine the winner.

With the development of municipal golf, it is possible that the Warren G. Harding cup will be one of the most keenly contested athletic trophies in the country in a few years. There are now 40 cities from coast to coast with public courses, and the number is increasing rapidly.

The movement is not confined to larger cities. Several towns of 10,000 to 15,000 have their courses. Numerous others are planning to do the same.

CROP PRODUCTION IN STATE IS LESS

Rye and Hay Show Great Falling Off—Increase in Oats.

Madison—The production of rye, barley, oats, hay and wheat will be much less in Wisconsin this season than during 1922. Paul Nyhus, state crop reporter estimates in his monthly review of conditions. A larger alfalfa and a larger pea crop are in prospect.

Unseasonal cold weather up to June 1 and a lack of rainfall during the latter part of May brought about a low condition of all spring crops. Some now were taught to swim and four bushels also became good swimmers. Many noon shop meetings and noon games were sponsored, a foreign world canvass, study groups and banquet service in the cafeteria combined to make May one of the busiest months of the past year.

Report of A. C. Person, worker under provisions of the Loveloy Memorial trust fund, also showed great activity. Among the things he conducted, and assisting in conducting were the Live Wire League; Hi-club; pin awards to six members of this club; plans for Polardays; and swimming at the high school, unusually successful with 450 lessons given to 61 boys, 48 of whom learned to swim and 16 of whom passed the beginner's test.

The production of hay is forecast to be 4,692,000 tons compared to 5,533,000 produced last year, or a decrease of 16 percent. Hay production is forecast at 6,142,000 bushels, or 11 percent below the 1922 production. This is Wisconsin's leading cash grain crop and is particularly prominent in central counties.

A decrease of 8 percent in the barley production is forecast by the reporting service due to lower production caused by poor seasonal development. The oat crop is estimated at 89,000,000 bushels, or 12,000,000 bushels below last year's bumper crop, although 3,000,000 above the average production for five years.

Spring wheat production is estimated to be 35 percent less than the last year and winter wheat 1 percent less. Winter wheat is said to point to an alfalfa crop of 307,000 tons, which is nearly 50 percent more than the production of 220,000 tons in 1922. A marked increase in the acreage of canning peas is noted. The crop is expected to be 25 percent larger. Practically one-half of the nation's canning peas are packed in Wisconsin.

Agee of the various crops reported, shows that oats have increased 3 percent in the total area planted, barley 6 percent, alfalfa 40 percent and turn 4 percent. The spring wheat area decreased 4 percent.

The condition of oats, barley and rye at June 1 was reported to be 84 percent, 85 percent and 84 percent respectively, compared to 84 percent, 83 percent and 82 percent for the same crops June 1 last year. Winter wheat grows chiefly in counties around Calumet county is said to be backward due to poor growing weather during the spring and was reported to be in condition of 76 percent.

SPECIAL: Rose Bushes, $1.00 a dozen. Geraniums, $1.50 a dozen. Phone 3575. JANESEVILLE FLORAL COMPANY.

Came to Janesville July 4.

The greatest history lesson ever taught in Janesville will be given here on the nights of July 3 and 4. It will consume a couple of good hours.

Instead of being dry, and instead of having to "think," the scholars in this class will listen to the most interesting lesson ever taught in southern Wisconsin. This lesson will not come out of a text book, nor will a teacher sit on a desk on a raised platform and exhort the pupils.

This lesson will be "The Land of Black Hawk," the biggest pageant ever staged in southern Wisconsin.

The history of southern Wisconsin is alive with red-blooded action.

Because it is, the pageant will abound with excitement.

Takes in Whole Section.

"The pageant of Janeville must be reason for the interest of all those who are to be a part of the pageant of southern Wisconsin," reads the scenario written by Stephen Boiles, editor of the Gazette. "In the beginning there were dream cities along the river, some of which are within the limits of Janeville and others have gone long since. In the middle, Kaukonong, Rockport, and Monterey loomed large on the plats with all the vision of the future expressed in surveyor's lines.

"The pageant of Black Hawk aims to visualize the story of this locality, but by the very nature of things it must be in outline only. The story will be acted out and curved at a given place and time, some liberty must be taken, some things legendary and perhaps mythical have been interwoven in the story and events cannot always be presented in the exact accurate historical order that occurred. A pageant like the historical novel with living characters."

Indians and Pioneers.

Redskins, soldiers, plowmen, squaws, trappers and others will crowd into the great picture to be painted here on the nights of July 3 and 4 when "The Land of Black Hawk" will play its part in the grand pageant as the spectacle supreme of the Independence day celebration.

Two Indian tribes will be involved in the historical outdoor play—the Sac and the Foxes. There will also be a few renegade Potawatomies, some Kickapoos and a few Winnebagos. In addition to the chief of Black Hawk there will be another, Chief Walking Turtle, after whom Turtle creek was named. The Winnebagos will be aligned with Gen. Atkinson as guides and scouts in the chase of the outlaw Indian. In fact, it was the Winnebagos that induced Black Hawk to surrender.

These figures alone would make the pageant worth seeing, but they will be joined by many others.

GEOGRAPHY CLASS HAS FOREIGN EXHIBITS

Closing days of A. B. West's geography course at the high school were made interesting by having practical demonstrations of customs in the foreign countries. A rum smuggling exhibit through exercise of the government power of the government, American officials, was observed as "Russian Day," and all about the room were seen Russian articles of clothing and household articles, mostly brought to this country by American sailors. American ships have been three years in that country. Many photographs were also shown. Another day that proved interesting was "Chinese Day," when similar articles native to China were brought. Mr. West believes that geography is thus made much more instructive and interesting.
